

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE following treatise being strictly practical in its nature and tendency, requires but few prefatory remarks. Its contents are,

1. A comprehensive summary of the principal points relative to the law, usage, and negotiation of Bills of Exchange, Drafts, and Promissory Notes; designed chiefly for the use of MERCHANTS and MEN OF BUSINESS.

2. Observations on drawing and accepting Bills in regard to their maturity, or term of payment; with monthly statements showing when Bills and Notes, though dated on different days, and drawn for a like term, yet fall due the same day; also, when one day's difference in date will make several days' difference in the time of payment.

3. A Series of Tables so constructed as to show at a glance, when any bill, note, or draft, drawn or accepted any day of the year, at the usual periods; namely, from 1 to 100 days, and from 1 to 12 months, date or sight, will become due; the days of grace included.

4. Useful information respecting trade and commerce generally : comprising, the rates of commission on foreign and inland business ; commercial allowances ; foreign monies, as received at the custom-house ; equation of payments, &c.

Time is highly important to the merchant and the tradesman ; and should this publication be found to expedite the business of the counting-house, or aid the accountant in his daily avocations, the compiler's anticipations will be fully realized.

Without multiplying words, either in expatiating upon its utility, or in apologizing for its defects, the work is respectfully submitted to the consideration of the commercial world.

CHAPTER I.

GENERAL REMARKS—FOREIGN AND INLAND BILLS—DRAFTS AND PROMISSORY NOTES—REQUISITES OF BILLS.

EXCHANGE is a general term, used to designate that species of mercantile transactions, by which the debts of individuals residing at a distance, are paid without the transmission of money.

It is probable that what is now called a Bill of Exchange, was originally nothing more than a simple letter of credit from a merchant residing in one country to his debtor in another, requesting him to pay the debt to the bearer of the letter. This mode of closing accounts, was found by experience, to be extremely convenient to all parties :—to the creditor, for he could thus receive his debt without risk or expense—to the debtor, for facility of payment was an equal accommodation to him—and to the bearer of the letter, who found himself in funds in a foreign country without the danger and inconvenience of carrying specie. As trade and commerce increased, these letters, or bills, became articles of traffic, and the present complicated and abstruse theory and practice of exchange was gradually formed.

The necessity of Bills of Exchange in the payment of debts between individuals of different countries, arises from the circumstances that the exporter and the importer are not one and the same person. If a merchant of Bordeaux shipped a quantity of wine to a merchant at London, and directed him to invest the proceeds in British manufactures and ship them to Bordeaux, the transaction would be closed the moment the order was complied with; but mercantile transactions are not thus balanced. The following illustration will give the reader a general idea of the utility of Bills of Exchange, in balancing accounts between distant places, without the transmission of money.

Suppose that A. of New York, ships a lot of Cotton to his correspondent, B. of Liverpool, who sells it for £100; and that C. of Liverpool, sends to his agent, D. of New York, a lot of Hardware, who sells it for a sum of money equal to £100. In this case, were it not for the intervention of a Bill of Exchange, B. of Liverpool, would transmit £100 to A. of New York; whilst D. of New York, would transmit a like amount to C. of Liverpool: but, by this simple contrivance, the risk and expense attending the transportation of specie are avoided. A., the shipper of the Cotton, writes an order to B., requesting him to pay the proceeds to the holder of the order. D., the seller of the Hardware, being desirous of remitting money, or its equivalent to C., purchases this order, handing over C.'s money to A.;—thus, A. is paid for his Cotton sold at Liverpool, with the proceeds of C.'s Hardware; and C. is paid for his Hardware sold at New York, with the proceeds of A.'s Cotton. The instrument, order, or writing which we have characterized rather than described, is called a Bill of Exchange.

BILLS of EXCHANGE are either Inland or Foreign;—inland bills being such as pass between parties in the same country, and foreign bills those which pass from one country to another.*

A Foreign Bill of Exchange is a mercantile contract, in which three or more parties are generally concerned:—

1. The person who draws the bill and receives the value, is termed the drawer; he is also called the maker and seller of the bill.

2. The person in whose favor the bill is drawn and who gives value for it, is called the buyer and remitter; and, when named in the body of the bill, the payee.

* “Bills drawn in one of the United States and payable in another of the States are Foreign Bills. This position, though formerly doubted is now well settled.” (Bayley on Bills, 2d Am. edit. 21.)

3. The person on whom the bill is drawn, is called the drawee; and, after he has accepted it, the acceptor.

4. The persons into whose hands the bill may have passed, previously to its being paid, are, from their writing their names on the back, termed the indorsers.

5. The person in whose possession the bill is at any given period, is called the holder; and the party to whom the bill is last indorsed, or he who holds possession of it at the time of payment, is called the indorsee.

Inland Bills are divided into two sorts,—Drafts, and Promissory Notes;—the former containing an order, the latter a promise, both being of equal obligation, and entitled to the same privileges.

A Draft is a domestic or inland bill, expressed in the form of an order, signed by one party and addressed to another; requiring the latter to pay a specified sum to the former, or to the order of a third person.

A Promissory Note, or as it is frequently called a note of hand, is an inland bill, expressed in the form of a promise, from one party to another, to pay a specified sum at some future period, to a person therein named, or to his order, or to bearer generally. The person who signs a note, is called the maker; the person to whom it is payable, the payee; and the person to whom it is transferred by indorsement, the indorsee.

Requisites of Bills. In a regular bill, the four following particulars are necessary :—

1. The sum, place, and date.
2. The term, or time of payment.
3. The person to whose order it is payable.
4. The address and subscription.

Most mercantile payments are made in Drafts, Notes, or Bills of Exchange, which pass from hand to hand till due, like any other circulating medium. They are assignable and indorsable, and in all respects nearly assimilated.

A Set of Exchange, is three copies of the same bill, all of the same tenor and date, excepting the words, "first," "second," and "third," by which they are distinguished from each other.

The following set of exchange will exemplify the general form in which foreign bills are written :—

SIXTY DAYS after sight of this our first of exchange, (second and third unpaid,) pay to the order of Messrs. Prime, Ward & King, ONE THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING, for value received, and place the same, as per advice, to the account of,

LLOYD, JONES & Co.

LIVERPOOL.

It is absolutely necessary, in drawing a set of exchange, that the several bills should correspond with each other in every particular.

As the transmission of bills to distant places and countries was at all times a hazardous thing, merchants were obliged to invent some means of protecting themselves from the losses which frequently occurred in consequence. For this purpose, they adopted the plan of making copies or duplicates of their bills, some of which were sent at one time, some at another; thus distributing over different periods the chances of security. If but one arrived, that one was sufficient for the purpose intended; and if the whole of them ultimately reached their destination, they did but represent one sum, (for the first, second, and third constitute one bill,) and consequently were treated as such. In order, however, to guard against the danger of the duplicates of an original bill being taken for the original itself, which might lead to the payment of one sum twice over, the words "first," "second," "third of exchange," and so on, were used, to indicate their true relation to each other.

By the adoption of this plan, many other important advantages were secured. For instance, if a merchant had occasion to purchase and remit to London a bill drawn upon Paris, he would send the "first" to his correspondent at Paris, to procure thereto the acceptance of the party on whom it was drawn; and remit the "second" and "third," (properly indorsed,) to the House in London, with an indication at the bottom of each, that the "first" would be found with Messrs. ————. On the arrival of the "second," or "third of exchange," in Paris—where it must ultimately come for payment—"the first" is obtained by means of this indication, and being attached to the "second," the acceptance on the one, and the indorsement on the other, constitute it a perfect document, legally entitled to liquidation.

There are many reasons for this process, with regard to foreign bills. One is, that when a bill is purchased for remittance, it is paid for at the time; so that, were the sellers to become insolvent before it became due and the bill not accepted by the drawee, the amount would be lost. But by despatching the first directly for acceptance, the purchaser or remitter obtains the security of the parties on whom it is drawn, (provided it be duly accepted,) and consequently the acceptor would be compelled to pay it, notwithstanding the drawers might, in the mean time, fail in his debt.

As in the course of negotiation, bills often pass into numerous hands and become successively the property of persons residing in places far apart from each other, merchants have adopted the plan of directing them for acceptance and payment to parties who are not in any way connected with the bills. This is done by merely writing at the bottom—"In case of need with" Messrs.

By means of this indication, were the drawee not to accept or pay a bill drawn upon him, the holder immediately applies to the house mentioned in "the case of need," who would thereupon accept, or pay the bill, (as the circumstances required,) for the honor of their correspondents. Foreign bills have frequently several of these indications; and the object of having them paid for honor, is to prevent the necessity of their travelling back through all the previous holder's hands; an occurrence invariably attended with loss, inconvenience, and expense.

Under these circumstances, a protest, with what is called an act of honor, subjoined, is the evidence legally and commercially required to substantiate the fact. Thus, if a merchant had purchased a bill on London, and knowing nothing of the parties on whom it was drawn, had put a "case of need" to it, his correspondents in the event of paying the bill for his honor, would transmit the document itself, accompanied by a protest, with an act of honor, which would enable the remitter to recover the amount, with charges, from the sellers, without the inconvenience of non-payment to the parties to whom the bill was remitted.

When a bill is drawn, the drawee is generally advised, previously, by letter from the drawer, of the fact, in which case the words, "as advised," or "per advice," are inserted in the bill; but if no advice has been given, then the words "without further advice," are used.

The acceptance of a bill is usually written across the face of it, in the centre. Promissory notes are indorsed by writing the name only on the back, across the note as before.

CHAPTER II.

LEGAL PRIVILEGES OF BILLS—TERM—DAYS OF GRACE—REMARKS ON BILLS DRAWN AT SIGHT.

THE chief legal privileges appertaining to bills, are first, that though only a simple contract, yet they are always presumed to have been originally given for a good and valuable consideration ; and secondly, they are assignable to a third person not named in the bill, or who is not a party to the contract, so as to vest in the assignee a right of action in his own name ; which right of action, no release by the drawer to the acceptor, nor set-off, or cross demand, due from the former to the latter, can affect.

Although no precise form of words is required to constitute a bill, or promissory note, yet it is necessary that it should be payable at all events, and not depend on any contingency ; and that it be for the payment of money only, and not for the payment of money and the performance of some other act ; as the delivery of goods, or the like.

Any material alteration of a Bill, Note, or Draft, after it has been drawn, accepted, or indorsed, will invalidate it.

In drawing a Bill, or Note, much care should be taken that every part of it be accurately and distinctly written ; for errors and alterations, apparently trivial, have often proved fatal. The most material things to be attended to, are the date, the term and place of payment, and the sum ; and no error, erasure, or vitiation in any of these particulars, should be allowed to pass ; and, on no account, should a bill be altered after acceptance.

The negotiability of a bill, or note, depends on the insertion of sufficient operative words of transfer ; such as making it payable to “ A. B., or order ;” or “ to A. B. or bearer ;” or to “ bearer,” generally.

Bills may be drawn, accepted, or indorsed by the party's agent, if authorized for that purpose ; but when a person has such authority, he must either write the name of his principal, thus, " C. D. per A. B. ;" or state in writing that he draws, accepts, &c., as agent ; thus, " per A. B. for C. D."

If a Bill be drawn nominally on a clerk, or agent, directing him to place the sum to his employer's account ; and, if the clerk should accept the Bill, without specifying that he does so for his employer, the acceptance binds the clerk only.

The term of a Bill is the time, at the end of which it is to be paid : this varies according to the agreement between the parties, or the custom of different countries. Some bills are drawn at sight ; others at a certain number of days or months after sight, or after date ; and some at usance, which is a French term, and signifies the usage of the countries between which bills are drawn with respect to the time of payment. This varies from fourteen days to one, two, and even three months after the date of the bill. Double and treble usance are double or treble the usual period, and half usance is half the usual period.*

In reckoning when a bill becomes due, the day of the date is excluded ; and if it be a bill payable after sight, the day on which it is accepted must be excluded. Thus, if a bill be drawn payable ten days after sight, and accepted the first day of the month, the ten days expire on the 11th, and the bill, by the addition of three days of grace, is due on the 14th. The term, after sight, means after acceptance, and not after a mere private exhibition of a bill to the drawee ; for the sight must appear in a legal way.

Days of Grace are a certain number of days granted to the drawer of a note or the acceptor of a bill after the term has expired. The number of days thus allowed, varies in different countries, and is computed according to the law or custom of the place where the bill is payable.

In the United States, and in the British Dominions, three days grace are allowed, except on bills payable at sight,† or on demand, or when no time of payment is expressed.

* The usance between the United States and England is sixty days after sight.

† In the State of MASSACHUSETTS, bills payable at sight are entitled to three days of grace, unless there is an express stipulation to the contrary. A Statute was

When there are no days of grace allowed, and the bill falls due on Sunday, thanksgiving day, or any day of public rest, or great holiday ; or when the last of the days of grace happens on such a day, the bill is payable on the day preceding : and if not then paid, must be treated as dishonored.

Whether bills, at sight, are legally entitled to grace, seems yet undecided ; but the weight of authority has been considered to incline in favor of such allowance.

“Three days of grace apply equally,” says Chancellor Kent, “to foreign and inland bills and promissory notes. If the third day of grace falls on Sunday or a great holiday, as the fourth of July, or a day of public rest, the demand must be made on the preceding day.” “The three days of grace apply equally to bills payable at sight ; but a bill or note payable on demand, or where no time of payment is expressed, is payable immediately on presentment, and is not entitled to grace.” (Kent's Commentaries, vol. iii. p. 103.)

“The days of grace,” says Chitty, “which are allowed to the drawee, are so called, because they were formerly gratuitous ; they still retain the name of grace, though the custom of merchants, recognized by law, has long since reduced them to a certainty, and established a right in the acceptor to claim them in most cases of inland and foreign bills payable at usance, or after date, or after sight, or even at sight ; but not when expressly made payable on demand.” (Chitty on Bills, Chap. IX.)

“A bill or note importing to be payable within a limited time after a certain event, or on a given future day, or at sight, is entitled to three days of grace.” (Bayley on Bills of Exchange, Chap. VII.)

passed in this State, in 1824, the 5th section of which is as follows :—“On all bills of exchange payable at sight, or at a future day certain, within this State, and on all promissory negotiable notes, orders and drafts, payable at a future day certain, within this State, in which there is not an express stipulation to the contrary, grace shall be allowed, in like manner as it is allowed, by the custom of merchants, on foreign bills of exchange, payable at the expiration of a certain period after date or sight.” This does not apply to bills, notes, &c. payable on demand. (See Mass. Revised Statutes, Chap. 83.)

The above are the principal legal opinions on this point; but the custom which has obtained among merchants, as well as the usage of the banks generally, is at variance with those opinions; and, when bills, drafts, &c. are drawn payable at sight, it is understood that they are payable immediately on presentment. This remark does not apply to the practice in the STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS. (See note, pp. 16, 17.)

In the District of Columbia four days of grace are allowed by the banks; and in the State of Louisiana, when a bill or note is made payable at a certain day fixed, it is payable on that day, and no days of grace are allowed. (Bayley on Bills, 2d Am. edition.)

CHAPTER III.

ACCEPTANCE OF DRAFTS AND BILLS OF EXCHANGE—LIABILITY OF PARTNERS AS REGARDS ACCEPTANCE.

AN acceptance is an engagement to pay a bill according to the tenor of the acceptance, and a general acceptance is an engagement to pay according to the tenor of the bill. An acceptance may be either absolute, or qualified.

An absolute acceptance is an engagement to pay a bill according to its request; which is done by writing at the bottom, or across the face of the bill, "Accepted," to which the drawee must subscribe his name; or the signature merely of the drawee will be sufficient.

A qualified acceptance is when a bill is accepted conditionally; as to pay when certain goods are sold, or on the arrival of a ship, or any other future event which does not bind the acceptor till the contingency has happened.

If a bill be payable after sight, in order to fix the time of payment it must be presented for acceptance, and the date of the acceptance should appear; thus, "Accepted August 15th, 1837."

In all cases it is necessary to present a bill for acceptance at the residence of the drawee, or at his place of business, or where it is made payable, and also during the usual hours of business.

It is said that the drawee ought to accept a bill or refuse to do so, immediately on presentment;* but some merchants have the

* "Every person upon whom a bill of exchange is drawn, and to whom the same is delivered for acceptance, and who shall destroy such bill, or refuse, within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or non-accepted to the holder, shall be immediately liable for the amount of such bill." (Laws of New York, Chap. 5, Sect. 21.) courtesy to allow twenty-four hours for consideration, while others will have a bill, payable after sight, protested for non-acceptance if the drawee refuses to accept it when presented to him.

“There is no precise time fixed by law,” says Chancellor Kent, “in which bills payable at sight, or by a given time, must be presented for acceptance. The holder need not take the earliest opportunity. A bill payable at a given time after date, need not be presented for acceptance before the day of payment; but if presented, and acceptance be refused, it is dishonored, and notice must be given to the drawer. A bill payable on demand, or sixty days after sight, must be presented within a reasonable time, or the holder will have to bear the loss proceeding from his default.” (Commentaries on American Law, p. 82.)

The drawee, upon the presentment of a bill for acceptance, should be satisfied that the signature of the drawer is genuine, and that the amount has not been altered :—the frequency of frauds in this respect, gave rise to the usage of letters of advice. If the drawee accept a forged bill or draft, or a bill with a larger amount than that fixed by the real drawer, he will nevertheless be liable to pay a bonâ fide holder, and will have no claim upon the supposed drawer. Although the true sum be expressed in the body of a bill at the time it is accepted, it is customary among merchants to repeat, in the acceptance, the sum for which the drawee accepts; for otherwise he may incur the risk of subsequent alteration in the body of the bill and be exposed to the risk of paying a larger sum, or at least to the trouble and expense of litigation.

When a bill has been once accepted, the acceptance cannot be revoked, although the drawer should have become insolvent before the date of the acceptance.

In the State of New York it is made necessary by the Revised Statutes, that the acceptance of a bill or draft should be in writing, and signed by the acceptor or his authorized agent.

Liability of Partners. Where one of several partners accepts a bill drawn on the firm, for himself and partners, or in his own name only, such acceptance binds the partnership if it concern the trade ; but the acceptance of one of the firm on behalf of himself and partners will not bind the partnership, if it concern the acceptor only, in a separate and distinct interest, and if the holder of the bill, at the time he became so, was aware of that circumstance. If, however, he be a bonâ fide holder, for a sufficient consideration, and had no such knowledge at the time he first became possessed of the bill, no subsequently acquired knowledge of the misconduct of the partner, in giving the security, will prevent him from recovering against all the partners.

CHAPTER IV.

INDORSING BILLS AND PROMISSORY NOTES.

AN indorsement is the act by which the holder of a bill or note transfers his right to another person. It is usually made on the back of the instrument, and, in general, the mere signature of the indorser is sufficient.

The payee should be the first indorser, and the person to whom it is thus made payable is called the indorsee, who, if he negotiates the bill, must also indorse it. Every indorser, as well as the acceptor and payee, is an additional surety to a bill, and may, therefore, be sued for payment.

Bills, notes, and drafts may be transferred either by delivery only, or by indorsement and delivery. When drawn payable to order, they are transferred by the latter mode only; but, when payable to bearer, or when originally made payable to order and indorsed, they may be transferred by either mode. On a transfer by delivery, the person making it ceases to be a party to the bill; but when transferred by indorsement, he is to all intents and purposes chargeable as a new drawer.

A bill or note originally transferable, may be restrained; for the payee or indorser having the absolute property in the bill, may, by express words, restrict its currency, by indorsing it "payable to A. B. only for his use," or any other words, clearly demonstrating his intention to make a restrictive and limited indorsement. Such special indorsement precludes the person in whose favor it is made from transferring the bill so as to give a right of action against the special indorser, or any of the preceding parties to the bill.

It has been decided that a person who discounts a bill indorsed thus;—"Pay to A. B. or order, for my use," discounts it subject to the risk of having to pay the money to the special indorser who so limited the application, "for my use;" in this case a person may be liable to pay the amount of the bill twice, unless he previously ascertains that the payment has been made conformably to the import of the indorsement.

It seems that an agent by indorsing a bill unconditionally, would be personally liable to the indorsee, though the latter knew the indorsement was made in the character of agent. It is necessary, in such cases, for an agent, in order to exempt himself from responsibility, to specify in his indorsement, that he makes it without intending to incur personal liability for the payment; this may be effected by adding the words "without recourse to me," which will constitute a qualified indorsement and give notice to any subsequent party to the bill, that the indorser acted only as agent.

Negotiation of Bills, &c. after they are due.—There is a material distinction in the effect of a transfer made before a bill is due and one made after that time. In the first case the transfer carries no suspicion upon the face of it, and the assignee receives the bill on its own intrinsic credit; but when a transfer of a bill or note is made after it is due, the indorsee takes it subject to all objections in respect to want of consideration, &c. to which it was liable in the hands of the person from whom he takes it. In other words, the party receiving an over-due bill cannot acquire a claim which the party holding the bill did not possess. For instance, one party may draw an accommodation bill upon another. In this case, as no value had been given, the drawer could not recover the amount from the acceptor. But if the drawer had passed this bill for a valuable consideration to a third party before it became due, that party could recover from the acceptor. If the drawer had passed it to a third party, even for value, after it became due, the third party could not sue the acceptor; but would stand in the same situation as the drawer. (Chitty on Bills.)

Indorsing Notes, payable on demand.—"Where a promissory note, payable on demand, is indorsed within a reasonable time after the date, the indorsee has all the rights of an indorsee receiving a negotiable instrument before it becomes due; but if it be not indorsed within a reasonable time, it will be considered as over-due and dishonored, and the indorsee will be subject to any defence which would have been available against his indorser."

"What is a reasonable time is not precisely settled; though it is clear that a note, on demand, is to be considered as over-due and dishonored, a year or even nine months from its date; but not over-due a few days after the date." (Bayley on Bills, Chap. V.)

CHAPTER V.

PAYMENT OF BILLS—DAMAGES ON BILLS—SUPRA PROTEST.

It would be extremely injurious to commerce, if the holder of a bill were suffered to give longer credit to the drawee, than the bill directs, and afterwards, in default of payment by such drawee, to resort to the drawer or indorsers at a time when perhaps the accounts between them, and the persons liable to them, might be adjusted. On this principle, it is settled that the holder of a bill, note, or draft, must be careful to present it for payment at the time when due, when a time of payment is specified; and when no time is expressed, within a reasonable period after the bill is received; and, if he neglect to do so, the drawer and indorsers will be exonerated from their liability. Even the bankruptcy, insolvency, or death of the acceptor will not excuse a neglect to make presentment to the assignees or executor; nor will the insufficiency of a bill in any respect constitute an excuse for non-presentment.

The presentment should be made at a reasonable time of the day when the bill is due; and if, by the known custom of any trade or place, bills are payable only within particular hours, a presentment must be made within those hours. If a bill has a qualified acceptance, the presentment should be at the place mentioned in such qualified acceptance, or all the parties will be discharged from their obligations. "It is equally unreasonable," says Chancellor Kent, "to demand payment before as after the third day of grace. The demand must be made on the third day of grace, or on the second, if the third day be a day of public rest; and in default of such demand, the drawer of the bill and the indorser of the note are discharged."

If the bill be paid, the payer has a right to insist on its being delivered to him; but if it be not paid, the holder should keep it. Yet it has been held that an agent is justified, by the usage of trade, in delivering up a bill on receiving a check, though that check is afterwards dishonored. But the drawer and indorsers, in such a case, would be discharged, for they have a right to insist on the production of a bill and to have it delivered up on payment by them. If the holder of a note receive bank-notes instead of cash, and the bank fail, the drawer is discharged.

The consequence of not duly presenting a bill or note is, that all the antecedent parties are discharged from their liability, whether on the instrument, or on the consideration for which it was given. The acceptor, or maker, however, still continues liable. A bill is not discharged, and finally extinguished, until paid by the acceptor; nor a note, until paid by the maker.

Payment of a bill should be made to the holder only, and it may be legally refused unless the bill be produced.

On payment, a receipt should, for the safety of the payer, be written upon the back; and when a part is paid, the same should be indorsed upon the bill or note, otherwise the party paying may be again liable for the amount, to a bonâ fide indorsee.

It may be stated, generally, that if the holder of a bill grant any undue indulgence, or agree to any alteration of the peremptory obligation on the acceptor to pay the full sum, without first obtaining the consent of the other parties, he does so at his own risk, and will lose recourse.

The usual method of demanding payment of bills, &c. in the United States, is to deposit them for collection in some one of the Banks in the place where they are payable; in which case, the Bank sends a notice* to the maker of the note, or acceptor of the bill, that his note or bill is payable on such a day; which is the last day of grace. But if it be not paid when due, the Bank must cause it to be presented, at his place of business, or at his residence, for payment, before any legal steps can be taken against him.

* This, however, is a mere act of courtesy on the part of the Bank. There is no law requiring a notice for this purpose.

Payment Supra Protest, is where a bill, having been protested for non-payment, is paid by another person for the honor of some one of the parties. It is said that such payment should be preceded, on the part of the payer, in the presence of a Notary Public, by a declaration for whose honor the bill is paid, which should be recorded by the Notary, either in the protest, or in a separate instrument.

Damages on Bills of Exchange. In Europe, when a bill is dishonored, the holder is authorized to re-draw, in order to recompense himself, for such an amount as will make good the face of the bill, the interest, the necessary charges of protest, postage, broker's commission and the current rate of exchange; but in the United States, the practice of re-exchange is not adopted. The laws and usages with regard to damages on bills, vary materially in the different States, and form an exception to the European commercial law.

CHAPTER VI.

NEGOTIATION OF BILLS—PROTEST AND NOTICE OF DISHONOR— LOSS OF BILLS.

By negotiation, is meant, the right of the drawer and indorsers of a bill to require that it be duly presented by the holder for acceptance, or for payment; and, if either be refused, that it be duly protested, and that notification of the dishonor shall be made to the parties concerned, on whom the holder is entitled to claim recourse.

Upon the non-acceptance or non-payment of a bill, or draft; or the non-payment of a promissory note, a Notary Public should immediately protest it; that is, draw up a formal notice of the refusal to accept or pay, as the case may be, and the declaration of the holder against sustaining loss thereby.

In addition to the protest, it is farther required, in order to preserve recourse to the holder against the drawer and indorsers of a Foreign Bill of Exchange, that notification of dishonor be made within such time as is required by the usage and custom of merchants. To persons residing in the same place, notice must be given by the holder, at the latest, before the end of the day following the day of refusal to accept or pay; and by the other parties, before the end of the day following that on which they themselves receive notice of the dishonor; but it is requisite, if written notice be sent, that the letter should be put into the post-office before the mail of the second day goes out, so that it may reach the person to whom it is addressed on that day. To persons residing in another place, in case of the non-acceptance or non-payment of either a foreign or inland bill, notice and protest should be forwarded as early as possible after the event ; otherwise the holder may lose the security of the drawer and indorsers.

It is the duty of the holder, and of each person to whom the dishonor is made known, to intimate immediately to all the parties against whom he is entitled to claim recourse, in order to avoid the risk of neglect by the others ; for if any one party to a bill does not receive due notice of the dishonor, he is not liable. Notification, therefore, by the holder to the last indorser only, while it is sufficient to preserve recourse against him, is not sufficient to preserve recourse against the prior indorsers who have not received notice.

Recourse will be preserved to the holder, and each indorser, against all parties—

1. By the holder duly intimating the dishonor, to the drawer and all the indorsers : or,

2. By his making intimation to his own immediate indorser, by whom due notice is given to the preceding indorser, and so on through the whole.

Though no precise form be necessary, yet the notice ought to specify distinctly the particular bill or note which has been dishonored, so as to prevent any doubt or misapprehension, and to enable the indorser to adopt measures against those who are liable to him in relief. The safest course may be to send an exact copy of the bill, draft, or note ; and the notice should specially state that the bill, &c. has been dishonored, by non-acceptance, or non-payment, or at least, by not being paid or accepted, agreeably to its tenor,—that it has been protested, and that the holder claims recourse against the person to whom the notice is addressed. If the drawee offer acceptance of any particular kind, which the holder does not think himself warranted to take ; or if acceptance should be refused on any special ground, the holder ought, in the notice of dishonor, to specify the kind of acceptance offered, or the reason assigned for refusal to accept. It is proper, though not imperative, to send a copy of the protest along with the notice of dishonor, and especially if the party to whom notice is sent be abroad.

Sending a notice of non-payment or non-acceptance by mail is held to be sufficient though it be not received ; and where there is no mail, it is sufficient to send by an ordinary mode of conveyance.

The following is the law relative to this subject in the State of New York. An act passed, in this State, in 1835, says, that : "In all cases where a notice of non-acceptance of a bill of exchange, or non-payment of a bill of exchange, promissory note, or other negotiable instrument, may be given by sending the same by mail, it shall be sufficient if such notice be directed to the city or town where the person sought to be charged by such notice resided, at the time of drawing, making or indorsing such bill of exchange, promissory note, or other negotiable instrument, unless such person at the time of affixing his signature to such bill, note, negotiable instrument, shall, in addition thereto, specify thereon the post-office, to which he may require the notice to be addressed."

"Notice to one of several partners is notice to all ; and when it has been drawn by a firm upon one of the partners, and by him accepted and dishonored, it is unnecessary to give notice of such dishonor to the firm ; for this must necessarily be known to one of them, and the knowledge of one is the knowledge of all."—(Bayley on Bills.)

If the party be dead, notice should be given to his executor or administrator. The notice should be given by a clerk, or some one who will be a competent witness to prove it ; and not by the holder in person.

"If the holder of a bill, note, or check has lost the same, he ought immediately to give notice of his loss as explicitly and extensively as possible. A written notice, stating the dates, sums, names of the parties, and other terms of the securities ; and the particulars of the time, place, and mode of loss, should be forwarded immediately to all the parties liable. A similar notice should also be circulated in handbills, and through the medium of the newspapers ; for if any person discounts a bill, note, &c. with notice of the loss, he can acquire no property in it whatever."

"It is incumbent on the party who has thus lost a bill or note, even though it has been destroyed, to make application, at the time it is due, for payment, and to give notice to all the parties of the refusal of the drawee to pay the same, for otherwise he will lose his remedy against the drawer and indorsers. The drawee, however, has always a right to insist on the production of the bill before he pays it, and may legally defend an action if it be not produced, it being part of his contract to pay on presentment of the bill. But the loss of a bill only suspends the remedy at law, and even a tender of payment to the loser, if he will give up the security, will not be equivalent to payment; and, therefore, if the bill be afterwards found, the loser may sue all the parties, and the circumstance of an agent of one of the parties having made such tender, and afterwards failed with the money in his hands, will afford no defence." (Chitty on Bills, Chap. VI.)

Before concluding these remarks, it may not be improper to introduce one or two cautions with regard to acceptances, accommodation paper, &c.

1. A man should not put his name as acceptor to a bill or draft without well considering whether he has the means of paying the same when due, as otherwise he may be liable not only to the costs of the action against himself, but also to the costs of the actions against the other parties to the bill. The shrewd merchant or tradesman is generally anxious to get the acceptance of his debtor at a short date, well knowing that it not only fixes the amount of the debt, but it is more speedily recoverable by legal procedure than a book debt.

2. The drawer should be well satisfied that his drafts or bills will be accepted, and duly honored, before he draws: to this end it is requisite that he be assured of having effects in the hands of the person drawn upon; and also that the drawee be a man of punctuality and integrity, who will not dishonor his paper, but pay it regularly as it becomes due; for the dishonor of a bill may be ruin to the credit of the drawer, with all those, at least, through whose hands it may pass.

3. The acceptor should insist upon his correspondent's advising of each bill so soon as drawn, specifying the number, date, sum, time, and to whom payable ; for if he should accept or pay a forged draft, the loss will fall on himself.

4. Merchants who wish to support their credit and respectability, should be cautious in resorting to the destructive system of cross-accommodation acceptances : it seldom ends well, and usually excites suspicion as to the integrity of the parties ; it being an expedient often adopted by swindlers to defraud the public. Independent of the expense in discounts, interest, &c., the danger attending such accommodation bills is sufficient to deter any prudent man from the practice. Suppose, for instance, A. and B. mutually accommodate each other to the amount of $5,000, the acceptances being in the hands of third persons : both A. and B. are liable to such third persons to the extent of $10,000 each ; and should A. by any unforeseen occurrence be suddenly rendered unable to meet his acceptances, the holders of the whole, will resort to B. for payment ; and it may so happen, that although B. could have provided for his own share of the accommodation paper, yet he may be unable to provide for the whole, and may thus become insolvent, or subject himself to the trouble and expense of litigation.

5. It is of great importance to brokers and others taking bills and notes, that they should have some knowledge of the parties from whom they receive them ; otherwise, if the instrument turn out to have been lost, or fraudulently obtained, they may, without equivalent, be deprived of their security on an action by the owner to recover possession.

CHAPTER VII.

OBSERVATIONS ON DRAWING AND ACCEPTING BILLS, NOTES, ETC.

WHEN the term of a Bill, Draft, or Promissory Note is expressed in months, calendar months are always understood; and notwithstanding the inequality of the respective months, it is an established custom not to extend the time of payment beyond the month in which the bill would have fallen due had that month contained 31 days. Thus, if a promissory note be dated the 28th, 29th, 30th, or 31st January, and made payable one month after date, the term expires the last day of February, to which the days of grace must of course be added. Hence it is important, in order to avoid the inconveniences often occasioned by several payments coming to maturity at the same period, to attend to the dates at the time of giving such obligations. For example, if four notes, or acceptances, at six months, were dated as follows; the first 28th, the second 29th, the third 30th, and the fourth 31st of August, they would all fall due the same day; namely, the 1st—3d of March.

It is also worthy of notice, that by making one day's difference in the date, it frequently happens that two, three, and even four days are gained in the time of payment: for instance, a note dated February 28th, at three months, is due May 31st; but, if it were dated March 1st, that is the next day, it would not fall due till June 4th; making a difference of four days.

The following statements are designed to show the dates and periods in which such instances occur. It will be seen that a note, or acceptance, at six months, dated February 28th, is due August 31st; and perhaps it would be immaterial to the payee if it were dated the next day, March 1st; in which case it would not be payable till September 4th;—making a difference of four days in the time of payment. In accepting bills, or in giving promissory notes for large sums, this difference might be important to one party or the other.

In the calculation of the dates, in the following statements, three days of grace are in all cases included.

A SERIES OF TABLES

SHOWING

WHEN BILLS OF EXCHANGE, NOTES, AND DRAFTS, DRAWN OR ACCEPTED AT ANY DATE, WILL FALL DUE.

EXPLANATION.

The days of each month are arranged in succession at the top of the several pages. The usual terms or periods at which bills are drawn or accepted ; namely, from 1 to 100 days' date, or sight ; and from 1 to 12 months' date, or sight, are to be found in the first left hand vertical column, directly under the days of the month. In all the calculations, three days of grace are included. The day of the month when any bill or note is payable, will be seen in the column under the proper date, and opposite the term or period at which the bill is drawn, &c. For instance,

To ascertain when a bill, or acceptance, dated January 1st, at 60 days' date or sight will fall due, look in the left hand vertical column, under that day, and opposite to 60, you have the answer, viz. 5th March.

To know when a note, &c. drawn January 1st, at 6 months' date or sight will fall due, look at the bottom of the page in the division for months, and under that day, opposite to 6, the answer is seen at once ; viz. 4th July.

 In Leap year, one day must be allowed in the computation where the 29th of February intervenes.

. The writer is indebted for the plan and arrangement of the following tables, to an English publication, entitled "BILLS OF EXCHANGE TABLES," &c.

EXPLANATION.—The months counted from are arranged in the left-hand vertical column; those counted to are in the upper horizontal line. The days between those periods are found in the angle of intersection, in the same way as in a common multiplication table. If the end of February be included between the two points of time, a day must be added in leap years.

Suppose it were required to know the number of days from the 4th of March to the 15th of August. In the horizontal line marked 'March,' and in the column under 'August,' we find 153, which is the number of days from the 4th (or any other) day of March to the 4th (or same) day of August; but, as we want the time to the 15th of August, 11 days (the difference between 4 and 15) must be added to 153, which shows that 164 is the number of days between the 4th of March and the 15th of August.

Again, were the number of days required between the 10th of October and the 3d of June, in the following year:—Opposite to 'October,' and under 'June,' we find 243, which is the number of days from the 10th of October to the 10th of June; but as we sought the time to the 3d only, which is 7 days earlier, we must deduct 7 from 243, leaving 236, the number of days required:—and so of others.

The above table will be found very useful in the equating the time of payments, calculating interest, &c., and, if not the best, is certainly the most concise, that has yet appeared on the subject.

COMMERCIAL ALLOWANCES.

In selling goods, or in paying duties upon them, certain deductions are made from their weights, depending on the nature of the packages in which they are enclosed, and which are regulated in most instances by the custom of merchants, and the rules established by public offices. These allowances, as they are termed, are distinguished by the epithets, Draft and Tare. Allowances are also made, in the purchase and sale of merchandise, for breakage, leakage, &c.

Draft is a deduction from the original, or gross weight of goods, and is subtracted before the tare is taken off.

Tare is an allowance for the weight of the bag, box, cask, or other package in which goods are weighed. Real tare, is the actual weight of the package. Customary tare is, as its name implies, an established allowance for the weight of the package. Average tare is when a few packages only among several are weighed, and the medium tare taken as a standard for the whole.

In calculating Tare, any remainder which exceeds half a pound is reckoned a pound; but if it be less than half a pound it is not reckoned. The following are the

THE VALUE OF MONEY IN DIFFERENT COUNTRIES OF EUROPE, ESTIMATED IN DOLLARS AND CENTS.

As the comparative value of money in different countries is subject to slight and irregular changes, it cannot be precisely fixed for any given time. The following tables are believed to approach as near to it as the nature of the subject will admit. The asterisks denote that the denomination to which they are annexed is only nominal, and not represented by any real coin. The fractional parts of the cents are decimals.

EQUATION OF PAYMENTS,

OR

AVERAGE TIMES OF PAYMENTS.*

Note.—In the equation of payments, when the sums are composed of dollars and cents, the cents, if under 50, are omitted; and if over 50, they are counted as one dollar.

To find the average time at which several sums of money, due at different periods, may be paid, so that no loss shall be sustained by either the debtor or creditor, is called Equating, or reducing the times of payment to one. For example:—

A. owes B. \$440, whereof \$200 is payable in 2 years, \$160 is payable in $3\frac{1}{2}$ years, and the balance, \$80, is payable in $4\frac{1}{2}$ years. Now, at what period may B. receive the whole amount, so that the interest accruing on the sums which are overdue, may be counter-balanced by the discount on the sums which are not yet due?

The sum due at the end of the first period, if not paid till the last period, will have the interest accruing on it during the intermediate time. The sum due at the second period, if not paid till the last, will likewise have the interest accruing upon it during the interval between the second and last period; and so on. Now, these several interests added together, will give the whole interest, if all the money were to be paid at the last period. But this would not fulfil the intended purpose, which is to discover a precise intermediate time, at which the interest due upon the portions payable before that time, would amount to the same sum as the discount receivable upon the portions payable after that time. By calculating interest upon the different portions, from the various periods of payment up to the day when the last sum is due, we have found what amount of principal and interest would be due if the whole debt were to be discharged at that period. To fulfil the intended purpose, and annul the interest, we must ascertain what number of days' interest upon the entire principal will equal the aggregate interest upon the individual sums; and, anticipating by that number of days the time at which the last payment will be due, we ascertain precisely the period at which the interest due upon the portions forborne is equal to the discount receivable upon the portions anticipated; in other words, we have discovered the equation of payment. For this purpose men of business use the following general

* This article has appeared before, in the author's treatise on Book-keeping, and also in the "Merchant's Manual."

R U L E .

Multiply the amount of each debt by the time it has to run till it becomes due, and divide the sum of the products by the amount of the debt; the quotient is the average or equated time of payment.

Thus the equated time of payment in the preceding example is ascertained as follows:—

Amounts.	Years.
200 multiplied by 2	. . .	equals 400
160 " 3 $\frac{1}{2}$. . .	" 560
80 " 4 $\frac{1}{2}$. . .	" 360
440	= Amount of the debt.	1,320 = Sum of the products.

Then 1,320, divided by 440, gives 3 years, which is the equated or average time of payment.

EXAMPLE 2.

Bought goods payable as follows, viz.:—$50 on the 1st of May; $64 on the 4th of June; $86 on the 1st of August; and $90 on the 5th of September. Required the equated time for paying the whole sum once?

Ans. July 14.

Dates.	Amounts.
May 1st, . . .	$50—due at this date.*
June 4th, . . .	64 × 34 days =	2,176
Aug. 1st, . . .	86 × 92 " =	7,912
Sept. 5th, . . .	90 × 127 " =	11,430
	$290	21,518 ÷ 290 = 74 days.

21,518, the sum of the products, divided by 290, the amount of the debts, gives 74 days from the first of May, which is July 14th, the equated time.

* The equated time may be found by reckoning either from the present period, or from the time that the first payment becomes due. In the latter case, the time or multiplier of the first payment is nothing.

CASE II.

When goods are purchased at different periods, but at the same length of credit.

RULE. — Find the number of days * from the first to the second purchase. Multiply the amount of the second purchase by that number of days. Proceed in the same manner with respect to the third, and whatever other number of purchases there may be; divide the sum of their products by the amount of purchases, and the quotient will be days. Add the days thus found to the date of the first purchase, and the time will be carried forward to the period of equation.

EXAMPLE.

Bought goods as follows at six months' credit. What is the average time of payment?

Dates.	Sums.	Days.	Products.
May 1,	$ 50
" 12,	150	11	1,650
" 19,	120	18	2,160
" 27,	100	26	2,600

$$6,410 \div 420 = 15\frac{1}{2} \text{ days,}$$

which, added to the 1st of May, carries forward the period of equation to the 16th of that month.

Proof. — Multiply the sum of each purchase made before the equated time, by the number of days from its date to the equated time. Multiply, also, separately, the amount of each purchase made after the equated time, by the number of days from the period of equation to the time it was made; and if the sum of the former products be equal to the latter, the work is right, as is shown in the following operation: —

$$\begin{array}{rcl}
 $ 50 \times 15\frac{1}{2} & = & 763\frac{1}{2} \\
 150 \times 4\frac{1}{2} & = & 639\frac{1}{2} \\
 \hline
 & & 1,402\frac{1}{2}
 \end{array}
 \qquad
 \begin{array}{rcl}
 $120 \times 2\frac{1}{2} & = & 328\frac{1}{2} \\
 100 \times 10\frac{1}{2} & = & 1,073\frac{1}{2} \\
 \hline
 & & 1,402\frac{1}{2}
 \end{array}$$

The foregoing illustration is so apparent, as to render any further explanation unnecessary.

CASE III.

When goods are purchased at different periods and at different terms of credit.

RULE. — Find the time when each amount becomes due, from which make an equation as in CASE II.

* The day from which you compute is not reckoned; but the day to which you compute is always included.

EXAMPLE.

Bought goods as follows:—What is the equated time of payment for the whole amount? Ans. July 4.

Dates.	Amounts.	Terms.
February 1,	$100	at 120 days.
“ 15,	150	at 90 “
May 7,	70	at 60 “
August 12,	90	at 80 “

The purchase made

February 15, is due	May 16, . .	$150
“ 1, “	June 1, . .	100 × 16 =	1,600
May 7, “	July 6, . .	70 × 51 =	3,570
August 12, “	Oct. 31, . .	90 × 168 =	15,120
		$410	20,290

$20,290 \div 410 = 49\frac{21}{41}$ days from May 16, which will bring the equated time to July 4.

CASE IV.

When goods are bought at a given credit, and partial payments are made before the expiration of the stipulated term of credit, to know how long the balance may run to cancel the interest on the payments made before maturity.

RULE. — First: Multiply the whole debt by the term of credit given. Second: Multiply each payment before maturity, by the time it has run from the date of purchase, and subtract the amount of their products from the product arising from the whole debt multiplied by the term of credit. Divide the remainder by the balance due at the expiration of the term of credit, and the quotient will show the number of days that this balance may run from the time the sale was made.

EXAMPLE.

Bought goods, amounting to $2,500, at 12 months' credit. At the end of three months, there was paid $400; at the end of six months, $500; and at the end of eight months, $200. When will the balance of $1,400 become due?

$$\begin{array}{rcl}
 2,500 \times 12 & = & 30,000 \\
 400 \times 3 & = & 1,200 \\
 500 \times 6 & = & 3,000 \\
 200 \times 8 & = & 1,600 \\
 & & \underline{5,800} \\
 1,400 \times 17\frac{1}{2} & = & 24,200 \\
 \text{Proof, } 30,000 & & \underline{24,200} \\
 & & 5,800
 \end{array}$$

$$24,200 \div 1,400 = 17\frac{1}{2} \text{ months.}$$

Q

CASE V.

To equate an account when there is a debit and credit of different amounts, and the total of each due at different periods, so that neither the debtor nor creditor shall be entitled to any balance of interest.

RULE. — First: Find the equated time of the Dr. and Cr. side, as before. Second: Multiply the smallest sum by the number of days between the dates, thus found, and divide the product by the balance of the account; the quotient is the number of days to be carried back or forward, as the case may require. ¶ If the balance be on the side of the EARLIEST date, subtract the quotient, or count back from that date; if on the side of the LATEST date, add the quotient, or count forward from that date.

EXAMPLE 1.

A. B. owes me, for goods purchased at different periods, $600, which is due, by equation, May 1; and I have bought of him, at different dates, goods to the amount of $800, which is due, by equation, May 16. When shall I pay the balance so that neither party shall be entitled to interest?

Ans. June 30.

$$\begin{array}{r} $600 \text{ the smaller sum.} \\ 15 \text{ days, the difference of dates.} \\ \hline \text{Balance, } 200 \text{) } 9,000 \text{ (} 45 \text{, the quotient.} \\ 9,000 \end{array}$$

The balance, in this example, is on the side of the latest date; therefore add the quotient, or count forward 45 days from May 16, which brings the equated time to June 30.

Proof. — From May 16 to June 30 is 45 days $\times 800 = 3,600$
From May 1 to June 30 is 60 days $\times 600 = 3,600$

EXAMPLE 2.

C. D. owes me $600, which is due May 16, and I owe him 800, which is due May 1. When must I pay the balance, $200, without either party being entitled to interest?

Ans. March 17.

$$600 \times 15 = 9,000 \div 200 = 45$ days, which, subtracted from the 1st of May, will carry the time back to the 17th of March.

In this case, the amount of C. D.'s credit being greater than the amount of my debit, and being first payable, it is evident that interest will accrue from the 1st to the 16th of May on the amount of his credit, after which he will be entitled to the interest on $200 more than I shall, so long as the accounts from that time remain unsettled; consequently, the longer the accounts run after the time of payment, the greater will be the balance of interest in C. D.'s favor; but if the accounts be settled on the 17th of March, I shall pay C. D. $800, 45 days before it is due, and he will pay me $600, 60 days before it becomes payable, and the interest of both amounts for the time that they are paid in advance will be equal.

EXAMPLE 3.

Equate the time of payment of the debit and credit sides of the following account, and state when the balance becomes due, so that neither party shall be entitled to interest.

— Dr. —			— A. B. —			— Cr. —
When due.						When due.
May 6,	To goods,	$600	May 12,	By cash,	$450
" 27,	"	700	" 29,	"	600
June 11,	"	500	June 15,	"	300
		$1,800			$1,350
	600
	$700 \times 21 = 14,700$
	$500 \times 36 = 18,000$

$32,700 \div 1,800 = 18$ days from the 6th of May, will carry the time forward to the 24th of that month.

$$\begin{array}{l} 450 \\ 600 \times 17 = 10,200 \\ 300 \times 34 = 10,200 \end{array}$$

$20,400 \div 1,350 = 15$ days from the 12th of May, will carry the time forward to the 27th of that month.

— Dr. —
May 24, $1,800.

— Cr. —
May 27, $1,350.

$1,350 \times 3 = 4,050 \div 450 = 9$ days, which, subtracted from the 24th of May, will carry the time back to the 15th of the same month.
